My purpose is not to paint a picture of perfection, but a picture of hope for all. This reality is explained in the Homilies of Clement where the Apostle Peter then explains about the Two Princes or Powers of the Left and Right Hands of God: "For thus from the beginning was a law laid by God, the Creator of all things, on each of the two princes, him of the right hand and him of the left, that neither should have power over any one whom they might wish to benefit or to hurt, unless first he had sat down at the same table with. The [Page B28] pictures are produced with X-rays, sound waves, or other types of energy. The view endorsed as mostly likely here is that the veil that was ripped was the one that separated the innermost, holy of holies from the rest of the temple. Her first dream as a child, her last dream that morning, almost fifty years later, was at the far end of the hard white hallway. Durell, Elementary Geometry London, p.
